Seattle Company Introduces ChangingBuddy™, The Diaper Changing Pillow
New device turns messy routine into safe, happy moments

Changing a baby's diaper never gets easy, particularly as the infant gets older, stronger, and more curious. ChangingBuddy™, the Diaper Changing Pillow, can be a big help. This soft, flexible, U-shaped pillow, manufactured in Seattle, comfortably elevates and restricts a baby's arms so they can't get to the diaper area. ChangingBuddy™ makes the diaper changing sanitary, efficient, and stress-free.

Michael Kennedy of Sammamish, Wash., invented ChangingBuddy™ as a byproduct of his own child-raising experience. "While enjoying my baby daughter Valentina growing and being more active, I realized that changing her poopy diaper was impossible for one person," Kennedy says. "I always had to ask my wife to hold Valentina's hands or distract her to avoid the mess she was making."

Kennedy, a specialist in safety devices for high-rise buildings, looked for solutions in baby stores and on the Internet. He asked dozens of pediatricians, caregivers, babysitters, moms, dads, and grandparents for recommendations and advice. "The only response I got was, 'Deal with it,' meaning that I would have to continue to wash down everything around the changing table and then change my own clothes every time I changed Valentina's diaper," he says. "I could not believe that in the 21st century there was nothing to help a parent with diaper changing except heavy restraints designed for adults."

The soft, foam ChangingBuddy™ diaper changing pillow has a protective inner cover and a washable, soft fleece outer cover that comes in several fabric patterns. Kennedy promises additional designs and more innovative products for diaper changing will be forthcoming from MSK Productions.
